Fennemore Craig expands Intellectual Property practice with addition of attorney Daniel Staley

Denver, CO, Aug. 27, 2008 — Fennemore Craig has expanded its intellectual property capabilities and its Denver office with the addition of attorney Daniel Staley to the firm's Denver office.

Staley has joined Fennemore Craig as a patent associate in the Intellectual Property practice. Staley is a graduate of the University of Denver Sturm College of Law and also holds a bachelor of science degree in mechanical engineering and civil engineering from the Colorado School of Mines. Prior to joining Fennemore Craig full-time, Staley worked at Fennemore Craig as a law clerk while he was completing law school.

Fennemore Craig's Intellectual Property serves national and regional clients, providing a full range of intellectual property protection strategies (patent, trademark, copyright, licensing, trade secrets, joint development and e-commerce) for clients including universities, start-ups, and multi-national domestic and international businesses in industries such as mining, metallurgy, film coating, geospatial imagery, pharmaceuticals, biotechnology, agriculture, non-destructive testing, optics and computer software and hardware.

Fennemore Craig is a full service law firm with more than 190 attorneys and offices in Denver, Phoenix, Tucson, Nogales, and Las Vegas. For more information, visit
