Phoenix, Ariz., May 23, 2011—Chris Gooch, a shareholder at Fennemore Craig law firm in Phoenix, recently was elected president of the Phoenix Men's Arts Council. He also was elected vice president of the Scottsdale Artists' School board.

The Men's Arts Council, founded in 1967, supports the programs and activities of the Phoenix Art Museum. With more than 150 members, MAC organizes annual fundraising events – including the Cowboy Artists of America Sale & Exhibition, the Copperstate 1000 Vintage Car Rally and Southwest Double Gun Expo - that benefit the museum's art education programs, help support art acquisition and sustain two endowments, the Western American Art Endowment Fund and the Men's Arts Council Sculpture Endowment. Gooch served as the chairman of the 44th annual Cowboy Artists of America Sale & Exhibition in 2009.

The Scottsdale Artists' School was founded in 1983 to provide classes in the fundamentals of representational art taught by working artists for students of all skill levels, and to serve as a gathering place for artists to learn, discuss problems and seek solutions with other artists.
