Two attorneys join Fennemore Craig's Denver office

DENVER, COLO.- Oct. 23, 2007 – Fennemore Craig has added two attorneys in Denver, expanding that office's capabilities in the areas of patents, intellectual property and commercial litigation. David McCrosky has joined the firm's Intellectual Property Practice and Daniel Glasser has joined Fennemore Craig's Commercial Litigation Practice.

McCrosky, an associate attorney, will practice patent and intellectual property law. He is a 2001 graduate of the Indiana University School of Law and also holds a bachelor of science in mechanical engineering from Purdue University. Prior to joining Fennemore Craig, he was a patent attorney at Global IP Counselors, LLP in Washington, D.C., where he prepared and prosecuted U.S. patent applications for control systems, wireless networks, video games, electronic entertainment devices, electric motors, bicycles and fishing reels. He also worked as a patent examiner at the U.S. Patent and Trademark Office in Arlington, VA, and as a design engineer at SMC Pneumatics, Inc. in Indianapolis, IN.

Daniel Glasser will be of counsel in the area of commercial litigation. He is a 1999 graduate of the University of Wyoming Law School. He earned a bachelor's degree in business management from the University of Wyoming in 1996. Prior to joining Fennemore Craig, he was in the litigation group of Kutak Rock's Denver office. His practice focuses on business, technology, real estate and construction litigation.

Fennemore Craig is a full service law firm with more than 190 attorneys. Founded over a century ago, Fennemore Craig has five offices, which are located in Phoenix, Tucson, Nogales, Las Vegas, and Denver. For more information, visit www.fennemorecraig.com.
