Fennemore Craig Attorneys Elected for Bar Leadership

PHOENIX, July 11, 2006 — Four attorneys with the law firm of Fennemore Craig have been elected for leadership positions with the State Bar of Arizona.

- Amy Abdo is the new Chair of the Labor and Employment Section. She is serving a one-year term as Chair. She also served as Chair-Elect, Treasurer and Secretary for the Labor and Employment Section. Ms. Abdo practices law in Arizona, California and Nevada in the areas of business litigation and employment law. She represents companies in franchise litigation, commercial disputes, contract claims and the defense of tort claims. Her experience includes jury trials, defending employers against allegations of employment discrimination, harassment, breach of contract, wrongful discharge and employment-related torts. Ms. Abdo frequently presents seminars on employment.
- Anne Kleindienst is the new Chair of the Business Law Section, having previously served in various officer capacities for the Section. She is serving a one-year term as Chair. Ms. Kleindienst practices in the area of business law, representing large and small businesses as well as financial institutions on a broad range of corporate and finance matters. She has experience in business formation and counseling, mergers and acquisitions, corporate debt finance transactions, representation of issuers, borrowers and indenture trustees in municipal bond financings, franchising, and trademark registration and licensing matters.
- Paul Krulisky is the Vice Chair of the Securities Regulation Section. He is serving a one-year term as Vice Chair. Mr. Krulisky practices in the areas of corporate and securities law. He possesses experience in the mergers and acquisitions area, representing buyers and sellers in asset and stock-based transactions, mergers and other business acquisitions and reorganizations. He also represents clients in private securities offerings and other general corporate matters.

- Susan Rosenfield is the Vice Chair of the Intellectual Property Section. She is serving a one-year term as Vice Chair. Ms. Rosenfield is a registered patent attorney, and her practice focuses on all aspects of intellectual property law, including the adoption, defense and enforcement of copyright, patent, trademark and trade secret rights. She represents corporations in the pharmaceutical, dietary supplement, personal products, cosmetics, agriculture and food, music, movie production, electronic equipment, environmental remediation, telecommunications, construction and internet content provider industries, as well as lenders, such as banks and venture capitalists.

There are 29 sections within the Bar, each one committed to bettering the practice area and attorneys it represents. Members of each section, especially the executive counsels, are available to the Bar's Board of Governors and to the Bar itself when their practice area expertise and insight is needed. They also provide learning and growth opportunities to section members. The majority of the attorneys who serve or have served on the Board of Governors first served as a section leader.
