Fennemore Craig Expands Government Affairs Practice in Las Vegas Office

LAS VEGAS, NV – Fennemore Craig, a leading Mountain West law firm, announced Jonathan Leleu has joined Fennemore Craig’s Government Affairs practice in Las Vegas.

“We are thrilled to welcome Jon to the firm,” said Mark Hawkins, office managing partner in Fennemore Craig’s Las Vegas office. “His deep understanding of the Las Vegas market and his investment in this community, will further enhance our government affairs practice in Nevada.”

Leleu represents clients before every level of government on issues ranging from economic and urban development, tax and transportation, to land use and zoning, licensing, real estate and development, public health and regulatory matters. He served as an Executive Member of the City of Las Vegas’ Economic Development Steering Committee, the Las Vegas Medical District Advisory Board, and the Downtown Las Vegas Alliance, and has been appointed to many committees charged with reforming various sections of the tax code. Leleu earned his J.D. from DePaul University College of Law and his B.A. from Loyola University, Chicago.

Fennemore Craig attorneys have helped develop and define laws shaping our region for more than a century. We serve clients at all levels of state, county and municipal government as well as numerous federal agencies.
