Fennemore Craig Announces Business Development Director

PHOENIX, AZ - Fennemore Craig, a leading law firm in the Mountain West, announced that Lindsay Moellenberndt has joined the firm as its first business development director. The new role is focused on enabling attorneys to foster forward-thinking conversations with clients that add value to their businesses.

“When creating this position, we envisioned someone who would not only work with our attorneys to identify and secure new business, but someone who could also help our existing clients thrive by connecting them with new opportunities,” said James Goodnow, Fennemore Craig’s president and managing partner. “Lindsay’s background in business development coupled with her unique ability to facilitate connections between people and companies across the region make her the perfect person for this new role at Fennemore Craig.”

“I’m thrilled to be joining a firm with such a strong reputation and track record of success – especially in a role that allows me to bring together my love of connecting people and companies with resources for growth and my experience in business development,” commented Moellenberndt. “I look forward to working with the incredible team at Fennemore Craig and their clients.”

Prior to joining Fennemore Craig, Moellenberndt wore many hats as the vice president of client development at Cresa, a commercial real estate firm, the founder and executive event producer at AZ BIZ LINK, an organization focused on enhancing companies through professional development and as the host of a podcast that is produced by RenzlerMedia. Moellenberndt has also served in business development roles with the Greater Phoenix Economic Council, SPS+ Architects and DLR Group.
